

INTERNATIONAL INSTITUTE OF GASTRONOMY, CULTURE, ARTS AND TOURISM

IGCAT Voice

Catalonia was awarded the title of European Region of Gastronomy in 2016. It was a great opportunity to reinforce collaboration between public administrations and agents from Catalonia related to local food production, local markets and food distribution, restaurants, guilds, research centres and universities, media, etc. It was also an excellent way to promote our food and gastronomy in Catalonia as well as internationally, raise awareness about our products and producers, with projects such as Benvinguts a Pagès (Welcome to the Farm), #SomGastronomia (We are Gastronomy), among many, and which were launched as a result of this award.

We have now received the title Catalonia World Region of Gastronomy 2025, which for us is a great honour as well as an extraordinary opportunity to take a crucial step forward in the work we started in 2016, allowing us to further IGCAT's philosophy of building cross-sectoral links between institutions (regional stakeholders) and together further promoting the richness and diversity of our gastronomy. This recognition will also go hand in hand with the transformations that our food system and gastrotourism requires in order to overcome present challenges in terms of food and climate change, sustainability, food diversity and health.

Catalonia, with its strategic location in Southern Europe and on the Mediterranean Sea, has long been hailed as a gastronomic paradise. Its rich culinary heritage, diverse flavours, and innovative chefs have captivated the taste buds of locals and visitors alike.

Catalonia is fully committed to IGCAT's sustainability objectives and thus to contributing to making a better world, from farm to fork, from food tradition to creativity and innovation, and ultimately finding a balance between local and global.
